

November 6th, 2011

Went to the strip Friday night with the R32 20th under the hood, on street tires and VP108 ran 12.4et @116mph. On race tires I know it will get in the 11's...Turned a few heads and lots of people asking questions about the build. Two for sure were a Z06 and an SS Camaro owner that saw all tail light from the R. At the end of the night I ended up against a V12 twin turbo AMG Mercedes...VP108, DSG, launch control, race tires, and twice the number of cylinders...Pulled me off the line but when my torque hit in second gear he did not run away from me.

Regards,

Mark V.